The Week in Review

Economic Releases for the Week Ending 5/28/10

	Consensus	Actual	Prior Period
April Existing Home Sales	5.6M	5.77M	5.35M
Q1 GDP	3.5%	3.0%	3.2%
April Personal Income	0.5%	0.4%	0.3%

Volatility and uncertainty continued to be two of the top forces driving financial markets last week. Despite mixed economic news and the uncertainties surrounding the European debt crisis, the oil spill, and financial reform, the U.S. S&P 500 managed to gain 0.16% last week to finish at 1,089.41. The S&P is still down more than 8% in the last four weeks and 2.30% year-to-date. After falling nearly twenty basis points in the previous week, the yield on the benchmark ten-year U.S. Treasury climbed five basis points to end the week at 3.29%. On the currency and commodity front, the Euro continued to weaken against the dollar, falling another $.03 to $1.23 USD/EUR, while commodities were broadly higher, highlighted by gold which rose $37.60 to $1,213.70/oz.

Economic releases went relatively unnoticed. The number of existing homes sold in April rose more than 7% from the previous month, from an annualized rate of 5.35 million to 5.77 million. A portion of the increase could be attributable to the expiration of the homebuyer tax credit, which expired at the end of the month. On a negative note, the supply of homes rose more than 11% to 8.5 months. The revised estimate of first quarter gross domestic product (GDP) failed to meet expectations and fell to 3.0% from 3.2%. Expectations were for growth to have climbed 3.5% in the first quarter.

The Week Ahead

Economic Releases for the Week Ending 6/4/10

	Consensus	Prior Period
May Non-Mfg ISM	55.5	55.4
May Non-Farm Payrolls	508k	290k
May Unemployment Rate	9.8%	9.9%

The holiday-shortened week ahead will be packed with not only top-tier economic releases, but also continued updates on the European debt crisis, progress towards financial reform, and the ongoing battle to contain the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico. The focus of the economic releases will be on the labor market, highlighted by Friday's release of the May employment report. Economists expect that the economy added more than 500,000 jobs in April, with more than 200,000 of those jobs coming from the private sector. The increase in payrolls is not expected to reduce the unemployment rate significantly however, as expectations are for unemployment to remain stubbornly high at 9.8%. The number of initial jobless claims is also expected to remain elevated in the 460,000 range. After peaking in the 650,000 range in early 2009, the number of initial claims had progressively declined until about February of this year. Since that time, the number of people filing new jobless claims has remained in the current area. In other economic news, the ISM indices are expected to continue to show strength, with expectations for the manufacturing and non-manufacturing sectors to report at 59.5 and 55.4, respectively.
